Care Planning Checklist

for Young Onset
Care Partners

Being diagnosed under the age of 65 presents unique challenges and there are many topics to consider, including, finances, children, employment, and health wishes.

Living with dementia can cause big changes in individuals and families future plans as many need to consider how life needs and wishes may change as a person's dementia progresses.

Your caregiving role is dependent on the needs of the person with dementia and your unique situation.

The following activities are for consideration only and offered as a guide so it may not fully cover everything that you need to consider in planning ahead for your individual and unique circumstances.

Remember, you do not need to do everything yourself!

Work with Alberta Health Services Case Manager through Community Care Access to determine when and where relocation will take place.

Prepare person living with dementia for the move.

Moving Day: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/im-caring-person-living-dementia/long-term-care/moving-long-term-care

To assist both you and the person living with dementia, review adjustments for the care partner, communicating and working with staff, and visiting.

| Care partner role | |
| Whether person is at home with 24-hour care or in a care home, your role is to inform, advise, recommend, and encourage person centered quality care. | |
| Provide the “All about me” history for care staff to read. Be sure it is up to date. | |
| Participate in activities with the person as appropriate and as you are able. | |

|--|--|
| If person is in a care home, make the environment home-like. Decorate the room seasonally, with familiar and appropriate non valuable articles from home. | |
| Spend positive time with the person: reminisce, recall humorous experiences, find comfort in the silence. | |
| Communicate according to communication abilities of the person. Be a good listener. Communication Strategies: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/i-have-friend-or-family-member-who-lives-dementia/communicating-people-living-dementia#Tips_for_communicating_with_a_person_with_dementia | |
| <h2>Working with health care staff</h2> | |
| Get to know the staff, maintain regular contact with them, see if you can participate in some activities, give positive feedback. | |
| If person is in a care home, attend Family/ Resident care conferences and participate in development of plan of care. | |
| If you have a concern about the care being provided, use effective communication skills when discussing with health care staff. End of Life Care: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/im-caring-person-living-dementia/end-life-care/what-do-i-need-know-about-caring-person | |

Adjustments

Initially you may wish to visit often and then as the person adjusts to new environment, your visits may become less often as trust builds with staff.

Enlist the help of your support system to sit with the person so that you can take a break, perhaps a hired or volunteer companion.

Plan a schedule for visiting with family and friends.

Know that your life will change, and you need to stay physically active and reconnect with pleasurable activities that you once enjoyed

| END STAGE PLANNING | Who/When/Comments |
|---|--------------------------|
| Education and support | |

| Goal is comfort care. Assist in providing comfort measures as appropriate. Comfort Care: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/im-caring-person-living-dementia/end-life-care/what-do-i-need-know-about-caring-person#Comforting_the_person | |
| Maintain dignity of the person. | |

|---|--|
| The need for companionship remains. Stay calm, attentive and communicate through sensory experiences such as touch, music, reading aloud, reminiscing. Reminisce – talk about favorite memories, play favorite music. Re-assure – “I’m here with you”, “You are safe”; use touch as in holding their hand. | |
| Provide spiritual support in line with person’s wishes and life history; i.e. arrange pastoral care or faith leader visits; recite or play favorite readings, prayers, music. | |
| Make sure that health care staff know the person’s wishes for end-of-life care. | |
| Communicate with staff any signs of pain/ discomfort. Understanding Pain Management: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/im-caring-person-living-dementia/end-life-care/what-do-i-need-know-about-caring-person#Understanding_pain_management | |
| Communicate regularly with family members, friends on how person is doing. | |
| If a brain autopsy has been requested, ensure that the doctor, care home and funeral home are aware. End of Life & Brain Donation: alzheimer.ca/en/help-support/im-caring-person-living-dementia/end-life-care/what-decisions-will-i-need-make#Brain_donation_and_or_autopsy | |

Caring for yourself

Share the care. Enlist others to sit with the person.

Make sure you schedule in some physical exercise daily.

Participate in grief support.

Celebrate the life of the person you have been caring for and take satisfaction for the role you have played to promote quality of life.
